We will continue to urge the administration to stop issuing all civil-nuclear waivers and call on our colleagues to expeditiously take up our legislation, end these waivers, and hold Iran accountable.

3 reasons why the US must revoke Iran's civil nuclear waivers:

- 1 They keep the catastrophic Obama-Iran nuclear deal alive
- 2 They give Iran cover to keep facilities open & engage in illicit activities
- 3 They allow Iran to continue developing its nuclear program

Yesterday's decision was a crucial step forward in dismantling the disastrous Obama-Iran deal. The administration should now end the waivers for the remaining projects related to the deal, especially the Arak reactor, Iran's heavy water reactor.

.@LindseyGrahamSC, @RepLizCheney, and I applaud @realDonaldTrump & @SecPompeo for today's news that the Trump administration will finally end the waiver for civil nuclear work at Iran's Fordow facility, which was dug out of the side of a mountain to build nuclear weapons.

There is no justification for extending that waiver in light of recent confirmation that Iran is violating its heavy water obligations, let alone for letting Iran continue to build up its program – not at Fordow, and not at Arak.

More evidence of the long-term threat from IRGC entrenchment in Syria. It's a shame they won't put effort toward infrastructure that benefits the people of Iran.

Syria, Albukamal – Iranian Land Corridor to the Mediterranean Establishment

"Imam Ali" Military Base
Undergoing intensive construction and repairs in the military base and its surroundings (approx. 20 km²). There are eight main areas under construction, in addition to military posts, fortification and revetments.

Intense construction going on at the new Iranian Albukamal-Al-Qaim crossing.

ISI Assessment: the construction of the "Imam Ali" military base is probably in its final stages and will be announced as operational shortly. Completing the development of the Iranian border crossing and the military base may allow Iran to transfer equipment, weapon, and personnel from Iraq through its new controlled border crossing and directly to the fortified storehouses in the new base.

The mullahs are playing with atoms in an underground bunker at Fordow instead of helping their own people, who are demonstrating in the streets. The administration's decision to revoke the Fordow sanctions waiver & keep maximum pressure on the regime in Tehran is the right call.

.@SecPompeo: #Iran's most recent action is yet another clear attempt at nuclear extortion that will only deepen its political and economic isolation. The right amount of uranium enrichment for the world's top sponsor of terrorism is zero.

Cancellation of the civil nuclear cooperation waiver regarding the Iran nuclear program is welcome news.

Iran's behavior in the Middle East, in particular the attack on the Saudi oil field, does not justify continued waivers for their nuclear program.

The Iranian people have a right to peacefully protest the corrupt and terror-sponsoring regime in #Tehran. Iranians deserve a responsible gov't that is accountable to its people instead of using gov't resources to destabilize the region with its terror proxies and adventurism.

The reports of lethal force being used against protestors in Iran are appalling. Tehran should know that no amount of censorship or oppression will hide the full extent of their brutality. #IranProtests

At least 12 killed at Iran petrol price protests

The government says the situation is "calmer" as reports suggest the death toll is much higher.
